

Forsaken

I go my weary course alone, abhorred and shunned where'er I'm known. No maidens smile when I draw near, but from my path they shrink with fear. For me there is no outstretched hand, no welcome smile in all the land. There is no lamp alight for me, no children climb upon my knee. Alone, alone, all, all alone! The gray world has a heart of stone, and pardon it will never give to its pariahs, while they live. I long to join the busy throng that moves in joyous haste along; I long to take my place again, and mingle with my fellowmen, but if I make a slight advance, I find the outcast has no chance, and voices rise, with anger fraught, "Go, Ishmael, we want you not!" Perhaps when I am gone to rest, and grass is green above my breast, some pilgrim, bending o'er my tomb, will say, "We drove him to this doom! Though dark and wicked his offense, his punishment was too intense. We drove him from his kind away, for eating onions every day!"

SEEK TO ENJOIN GARAGE.

Underwoods Say It Violates the Building Regulations.

Edward Underwood, Emline Underwood and Harriet Underwood have asked the District Supreme Court to enjoin the use as a garage of a building on the rear of the property of Albert Potter, 2554 Wisconsin avenue. The petitioners say the garage is erected in violation of the building regulations and is frequently used as a carpenter shop, to their annoyance and annual hours and on the Sabbath.

Mr. Potter's property runs through 30 1/2th street and adjoins the Underwood residence on that street. Complaint is made that the garage is so located that the water from the roof flows over the floor of the porch.

WHITE HOUSE GROUNDS HOME OF MRS. RABBIT

Gray Cottontail and Brood Protected by Police at Personal Order of President.

The doings of a gray rabbit have brought to the police of the White House grounds endless trouble through an order issued directly by President Wilson.

This mother rabbit strayed into the grounds, made a nice, soft line and deposited therein six cute little bunnies. Then she discovered she had made a mistake, as one of the White House dogs roamed through the grounds and would have been tickled immensely to get a bite of young rabbit. So one night eight or nine days ago she lugged one little rabbit at a time to a new home less than fifty yards from the front door of the executive offices. These the hiding place was discovered by man, another enemy.

The story leaked, and White House clerks and others visited the shallow hole in the ground, covered by soft matting, under which the little bunnies lay.

President Orders Nest Protected.

Returning from a ride one afternoon, President Wilson saw three clerks from the White House stooping over the nest. He called an officer and gave order that the rabbits were not to be molested, and that prying humans were to be kept away from Mrs. Rabbit's home.

One by one, though, the number of tiny rabbits has dwindled to a total of two. The recent heavy rains drowned several, and the nest has been in such a public place that the mother has been unable to visit the little ones to give nourishment except far into the night, when strangers were not so plentiful and policemen not so vigilant.

WOULD BAR U. S. JUDGES.

Measure Offered in Senate by Mr. Thomas.

Not waiting for action by the democratic national convention on a proposed plank to prevent justices of the Supreme Court from running for elective offices, Senator Thomas of Colorado, democrat, has introduced in the Senate a resolution proposing a constitutional amendment making it impossible for any justice of that court or any inferior federal court to be a candidate for elective office until two years after he shall have ceased to be a justice of the court.

The language of the proposed amendment, which is believed aimed at Mr. Hughes, the republican candidate for the presidency, is as follows:

"No judge of the Supreme Court or of any inferior court shall be re-elected or ordained and established shall, during his continuance in office or for a period of two years after such continuance, be qualified for or eligible to any elective office under the Constitution and laws of the United States."

The resolution was referred to the Senate judiciary committee. If adopted by Congress it must be ratified by three-fourths of the states before becoming a part of the Constitution.

Republican senators in the chamber smiled when they heard the resolution of Mr. Thomas read.

RIFLE MAGAZINE PROPOSED.

Movement Looking to the Publication Here of National Organ.

Civilian riflemen all over the country are being roused out by the headquarters of the National Rifle Association here as to whether they will support a magazine to be the organ of the association. It is proposed to make the magazine self-sustaining and to devote its pages exclusively to the promotion of rifle shooting.

Thirty-six rifle clubs were organized in the District of Columbia during the first five months of 1916, according to a report on the growth of clubs just issued by the national association. All over the country, the report says, 443 civilian rifle clubs, seven college clubs, two preparatory and military school rifle clubs and thirty-one high school rifle clubs have been organized during that time and have been supplied with arms and ammunition of the Krag pattern in sufficient quantity to participate in rifle practice. It says also that 1,082 civilian clubs, seventy-one college clubs, forty-four preparatory military school clubs and 118 high school clubs are now enrolled. These clubs have between 50,000 and 50,000 members.

WOMEN SEE EXHIBIT OF COOKING BY ELECTRICITY

Last Meeting of Season of Connecticut Avenue Citizens Has a Novel Feature.

Good things to eat, cooked on electric stoves on the premises, while the assembly looked on, were passed at the meeting of the Connecticut Avenue Citizens' Association Monday night in the Army and navy preparatory school. There was roast beef and ham and potatoes and peas and biscuits and cake and other good things.

The occasion was the lecture and practical demonstration on the use of electricity for cooking purposes, given by H. I. Mauger, electric engineer, who has devoted much study and work to the development of electrical stoves. His audience was composed largely of the ladies of the neighborhood, invited to attend by the organization.

Mr. Mauger cited the prophecy of Thomas Edison, the inventor, made thirty years ago when he invented the incandescent bulb, that cooking by electricity would soon be a possibility, and added that the time had come, and that it is now a factor in domestic economy. While the current may cost as much or more than gas to accomplish the same amount of cooking, Mr. Mauger considered that electrical cooking was a saving in money by avoidance of waste and saving of labor in many respects. They are clean and sanitary, he pointed out, and declared that the shrinking in cooking meats by ordinary methods was cut down to a minimum in electrically heated ovens.

New Firehouse Celebration.

President Crawford presided over the business meeting which preceded the lecture, and which was brief. Thanks were extended to Prof. Swavely of the Army and Navy Preparatory School for the use of the assembly hall of that institution for a meeting place.

A resolution was adopted authorizing the executive committee to conduct the business affairs of the organization during the summer months, this being the last meeting before fall.

Another resolution proposed a celebration on the occasion of the opening of the new fire house in that section of the city, and invitation was given to neighboring citizens' organizations to join in the celebration.

Laurel announced the appointment of Messrs. Leaf, Gage and Davis as the Fourth of July committee. The poverty of the organization's treasury was given as the justification for failure to respond to the request of the board of commissioners for Fourth of July funds.
